

FROZEN ST8 I&II

By Edward S. Barkin

Cameron Boczinsky is an FBI field agent/ profiler who is killed in the line of duty and then, in accordance with her expressed wishes, is put in cryonic suspension, so that she may live again at some time in the future. Dead for hundreds of years, she is finally revived in the 25th century, when the technology at last exists to reanimate her. As luck would have it, she is reborn into a world that direly needs her investigative expertise – because there is a serial killer on the loose and the global police entity (GLOPOL) has not had to investigate a homicide in over a hundred years. The reason: A supercomputer named Ogden that now controls all aspects of human existence has had the entire world under around-the-clock electronic surveillance all this time, so no criminal has ever escaped immediate apprehension. Until now.

About the Author

Edward S. Barkin is a native New Yorker and graduate of Yale University who has written and directed three narrative feature films that have played at festivals such as Sundance and Montreal and in theaters in New York and L.A. He has published fiction and drama in various literary magazines and articles in a number of academic journals, including Journal of Consciousness Studies and Physics Essays.

Preview Copy

FROZEN ST8 I&II
Author/: Edward S. Barkin

Format:	5”x8” Color Paperback
Price:	$24.99
ISBN:	979-8-9973388-4-8
Contact:	hbpubs@gmail.com